

Internship Series-1: Hospital Internship-Selim Dönbak

In this first part of our internship series, we cover the subject of clinical pharmacy internship at the hospital. Our 5th grade student Selim Dönbak wrote an article about the experiences he gained during his clinical pharmacy internship at Başkent University Adana Dr. Turgut Noyan Application and Research Center for you.

Hospital internship will be a suitable choice for students who want to reinforce the knowledge they learned in pharmacology-1,2,3 and clinical pharmacy-1,2 courses with an internship. In this internship program, you will find the opportunity to use the theoretical and practical knowledge of pharmacy education. Our student Selim has successfully completed his internship by participating in all the studies on medical oncology, radiation oncology and hematology, which protocols are used to prepare and administer drugs to patients, how drugs are administered to groups in clinical studies, follow-up of drugs in intensive care patients and examine the status of patients using polypharmacy.

Our student's article has been published by Oncology Pharmacists Association. You can access the details of the article from the link below.
